

Psychology of Women

PSYC 107

Fall 2026 Section 01 In Person 3 Unit(s) 08/19/2026 to 12/07/2026 Modified 08/18/2026

Course Description: Welcome! This course critically examines the psychology of women and gender from a feminist and social constructivist theoretical framework. Readings, assignments, and discussions foreground issues of identity, power, and inequality, as well as avenues for social change. We will explore how laws, institutional practices, gender norms, media representations, and commonly held attitudes and beliefs work together to reinforce women's subordinate status and the psychological impacts of gender inequality on women, men, and gender nonconforming people. This course also utilizes an intersectional framework and interdisciplinary perspectives to highlight the ways that race, ethnicity, social class, sexuality, age, and other categories interact with gender at individual, interpersonal, and institutional levels.

* Classroom Protocols

Inclusivity and Engagement Principles: Together, we will co-create a classroom environment that is inclusive and welcoming to everyone. In this course, we will respectfully discuss diverse experiences related to gender identity, race and ethnicity, and socioeconomic status, among others. To ensure that everyone's identities and experiences are valued and heard, I expect each of you to regard one another with the utmost respect. If you feel these principles are not being met by me or your peers, please let me know immediately.

Accessibility: I aim to make our learning community as accessible as possible. This means that I will provide accessible materials and create opportunities for different kinds of classroom engagement (i.e., traditional test taking, written assignments, group discussions, personal reflections, take-home assignments). If course materials are inaccessible, or you experience a barrier to participating in class, please bring this to my attention immediately, and I will gladly work with you to ensure accessibility. If you are a student with a disability who requires accommodations to achieve equal access to this course, please visit the Accessible Education Center \(https://www.sjsu.edu/aec/\). Additionally, please get in touch with me privately during my office hours or by appointment, preferably during the first few weeks of the semester, so I can ensure your needs are being met and I am doing all I can to support you.

Academic Integrity: All submitted work must be your own original work and produced exclusively for this course. Academic integrity includes following exam and paper rules, using only permitted materials during an exam, keeping what you know about an exam to yourself, incorporating proper citation of all sources of information, and only submitting your own original work. The use of sources (ideas, quotations, paraphrases) must be properly acknowledged and documented.

The use of AI (e.g., ChatGPT) at any stage of course assessments is prohibited. For example, students may not use AI to generate ideas, guide paper writing, edit/revise their original work, translate their original work, or construct sentences, paragraphs, or full papers. Violations will be taken seriously and may result in a failing grade for the assignment and/or the course. I cannot guide you in developing your critical thinking and writing skills if you use AI during this course. I highly recommend you all take advantage of the library's writing center. Click here \(https://www.sjsu.edu/writingcenter/index.php\) for more information about the writing center.

Academic misconduct includes, but is not limited to, disclosing exam content during or after you have taken an exam, accessing exam materials without permission, copying/purchasing any material from another student, or from another source, that is submitted for grading as your own, and plagiarism such as using internet material without proper citation.

Violations will be taken seriously and may result in a failing grade for the assignment and/or the course. If you have any questions, please talk with me before completing an assignment.

Distribution of Lecture Notes and Other Course Materials: All materials in this course are the intellectual property of their creators. As a student, you have access to many of the materials in the course for the purpose of learning, engaging with your classmates, and completing assignments. You have a moral and legal obligation to respect the rights of others by only using course materials for purposes associated with the course. You are not permitted to share, upload, stream, sell, republish, share the login information for, or otherwise disseminate any of the course materials, including video and audio files, assignment prompts, slides, notes, syllabus, simulations, datasets, discussion threads.

Please note that teaching and learning is an iterative process, and as such, the course schedule and other syllabus content (e.g., exam question format) may shift as we progress through the semester.

Program Information

Program learning outcomes (PLOs) are skills and knowledge that students will have achieved upon completion of the Psychology BA degree. Each course in our curriculum contributes to one or more of these PLOs. The PLOs for the Psychology BA degree are:

1. Knowledge Base of Psychology. Students will be able to demonstrate familiarity with the major concepts, theoretical perspectives, empirical findings, and historical trends in psychology.
 2. Research Methods in Psychology. Students will be able to design, implement, and communicate basic research methods in psychology, including research design, data analysis, and interpretations.
 3. Critical Thinking Skills. Students will be able to use critical and creative thinking, skeptical inquiry, and a scientific approach to address issues related to behavior and mental processes.
 4. Applications of Psychology. Students will be able to apply psychological principles to individual, interpersonal, group, and societal issues.
- Values in Psychology. Students will value empirical evidence, tolerate ambiguity, act ethically, and recognize their role and responsibility as a member of society.

Course Goals

1. Describe overarching goals of feminist psychological research focusing on sex/gender
2. Demonstrate analytical thinking, writing, and discussion
3. Articulate how identity, power, and inequality shape the meaning of gender as a social construct
4. Utilize intersectional frameworks to describe how gender is co-constituted by race, socioeconomic status, sexuality, and other social categories
5. Apply course concepts to your own everyday experiences and the broader social, political, and economic contexts

Course Materials

Textbook: Liss, M., Richmond, K., & Erchull, M. J. (2023, second edition). Psychology of women and gender. Norton.

(This is an ebook version.)

Additional required readings (no purchase needed): To supplement the textbook, which provides broad overviews of each content area, additional required readings are assigned to provide more in-depth analyses of specific topics. These journal articles and book chapters are listed on the schedule by author name and available as PDFs in CANVAS. You are expected to bring these readings to class to inform class discussions and in-class writing exercises either by printing and bringing a hardcopy or having access to it on a device.

A note about the readings: As the semester unfolds, our reading schedule may need to be adjusted to meet student needs and interests. Articles may be removed or rescheduled to accommodate a pacing that works for everybody. For this reason, you are advised not to read ahead by more than a week, and to check the course schedule regularly for updates (changes will also be announced during class).

Course Requirements and Assignments

How to Demonstrate Your Learning in this Course

Exams (x 2) – 60 pts each (120 pts in total)

To meet CLO #1 and CLO #2, you will take 2 in-person exams. Please see course schedule below for exam dates.

Exam questions may take the form of multiple choice, true/false, fill-in-the-blank, fill-in-multiple blanks, multiple answers, multiple drop-downs, matching, and short essay answer questions. Exam content may include PowerPoint slides/lecture material, textbook readings, and ALL Diversity Issues (not just the ones we analyze for Diversity Issue Write Up, but every single one in the textbook).

Make-up exams are permitted only for documented extenuating circumstances. Contact me as soon as possible and before the scheduled exam.

Journal Entries (x12) – 5 pts each (60 pts in total)

Journal entries are brief writing exercises (minimum of 300 words, double-spaced, 12-point font) that encourage you to reflect on course material and make connections to your everyday experiences, interests, and the broader social context. Some weeks may have specific prompts you will respond to, and others are open-ended. For open-ended prompts, you might write about a surprising research finding, a relevant news event, a conversation you had with a friend or family member, or a book or TV show that illustrates core concepts. However, you must write about a topic we examined that week. The strongest entries will reference specific arguments, theories, or study findings from lectures and readings, and cite research.

Please carefully proofread your work– typos and organizational issues that make it difficult for me to understand your writing may result in lower scores. I will provide feedback on your journal entries in Canvas, which may include sentence-level suggestions that are intended to help strengthen writing skills and clarity. Please read my comments and do your best to incorporate suggestions on future entries. If you feel that the feedback you received is unclear or unwarranted, I hope you will let me know by responding to my comments in Moodle or by coming to office hours!

Each journal entry is worth 5 points. Only 12 out of 14 journal entries are required, so you should plan to skip the weeks where your schedule is particularly full. Importantly, you can only submit one entry per week. The submission window opens on Monday mornings and closes on Sundays at 11:59 pm. Late submissions will not be accepted.

Exit Tickets (x10) – 3 pts each (30 pts in total)

At the end of twelve randomly chosen classes, you'll be asked to submit an "exit ticket" (3 points each) based on a particular prompt to gauge your understanding of course content, challenge you to apply what we are learning to your personal experiences, and provide space for you to ask questions about anything that feels unclear. Some may ask specific questions about the readings. Exit tickets are graded for effort and/or completion.

You will not know in advance when an exit ticket is going to be collected. Since only 10 out of 12 (you can drop 2) will count towards your final grade, exit tickets cannot be made up regardless of the reason class is missed (including sports and illness).

Class Total:

1. Exams: 120 pts
2. Diversity Write-Ups: 60 pts
3. Exit Tickets: 30 pts

Total: 210 pts
